Vorse X-FORCE v.1.3.7 (2011) has been released. Targeting of p53 for degradation by proteasome-mediated ubiquitination. Recent studies have revealed that p53 is ubiquitinated and degraded by the proteasome. Two types of ubiquitin ligases, HAUSP (HERC1), and HDM2 (HDMX), are reported to control p53 levels in the cell. Both functions are important for regulation of p53-mediated apoptosis. The HAUSP-mediated ubiquitination of p53 is a general pathway for maintaining p53 levels by inhibiting MDM2. The role of HDM2 as an E3 ubiquitin ligase is to modulate p53 function by degradation of the protein and preventing its activation. Here, we summarize the recent progress in the field of ubiquitin-dependent regulation of p53 protein.

Q: When trying to test simple API call in production on Google App Engine, get "The connection to the server was reset while the page was loading" I am trying to test my API on Google App Engine. The API works correctly when testing it on localhost (with testing server) or when deployed to staging (with a remote debugging server). However, when I test the API on production, the request returns a "connection to the server was reset while the page was loading" response. I have checked several posts on SO about the same error, but I can't find a solution that works. I have checked the following: Security: do I 2d92ce491b
