In a major blow to Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Nationalist Congress Party (NCP) chief Sharad Pawar Friday said the centre should have been allowed to approach the Supreme Court with a plea seeking a review of its order directing the CBI to register a case in the alleged $15 billion Hawala money laundering case. “When the matter is so grave, when the magnitude of the offence, though fraudulent in nature, is so big, the government should have come with a request to the top court so that the court could go through the material available on the case and give the desired relief,” Pawar told the media here. He said that a request should have been made to the top court to review its earlier order directing the CBI to register a case. Pawar made these remarks on the first anniversary of the apex court’s order directing the government to constitute a judicial panel to probe the case. The court, in the landmark decision, ruled that the government could not block the CBI from probing the case.

“Whether the government can stop the CBI from probing cases that it has already taken up, which are in progress, or whether it can file a fresh FIR is a separate issue,” Pawar said. Hitting out at the government for “failing to act” on the allegations, he said if the government, for reasons of political compulsions, failed to act, it should have approached the court to seek a review of its order. “I say, we are talking about the highest court, if the government is unable to deal with it, the government should have approached the Supreme Court and said it is not in a position to act in this matter,” he said. He also said that Modi’s government was “thoroughly demoralising” people who have served the government by becoming a “referee” to the government. He said the government has not acted on any of the complaints it received. “These so-called courts are totally demoralising, they keep knocking on the door of the government, only to be knocked back. What is the point of pursuing such so-called courts? If the government is not going to act, the government should say so, and the government has not done so.”Q: Why can't I access my object?
