Charles Bridge, is a stone bridge built in the Gothic style in 1357, connecting the Old Town (Staré Město) with the New Town (Nové Město). This was the first of the three Charles Bridges that were built, linking Prague Castle with the Old Town. This bridge was named after Charles IV, the first ruler of the House of Luxemburg, who served as the inspiration for both Prague castle and the Prague walls. The construction of Charles Bridge was overseen by a merchant from Linz, named Peter Parler, who was later appointed the first town magistrate of Prague. The second Charles Bridge, built in 1485-1495, is the most important architectural monument in Prague, combining a Gothic suspension bridge and a Renaissance facade. This bridge was named after Charles II, the first ruler of the House of Habsburg, who ruled much of Central Europe and was much admired by Prague. This second Charles Bridge was also built by Parler 3e33713323
