A: It is clear that all the columns are a linear combination of the first 3. The coefficients are given by:  $(1,0,0) \cdot \begin{pmatrix} 1 \\ 0 \\ 0 \end{pmatrix} + (0,1,0) \cdot \begin{pmatrix} 0 \\ 1 \\ 0 \end{pmatrix} + (0,0,1) \cdot \begin{pmatrix} 0 \\ 0 \\ 1 \end{pmatrix}$  which are exactly the first 3 columns of the matrix.

Use of progesterone in the management of severe bleeding at high-risk pregnancies. To determine the efficacy and safety of progesterone in the management of severe antepartum or intrapartum bleeding at high-risk pregnancies. The medical records of women with severe bleeding associated with pregnancy at high risk at the Institute of Obstetrics and Gynaecology, Fudan University, between January 2000 and December 2009 were reviewed retrospectively. After exclusion of women with abortion, the rate of placental abruption, placenta accreta and placenta previa were 10.1, 22.2 and 9.4%, respectively, in these women. Progesterone, administered in early-onset bleeding, was found to be effective in 95% of women, while the control group had a rate of 5%. Fifty-six percent of women had a complete response, 26% had a partial response, and in 18% bleeding continued despite progesterone. The main adverse effects were abortion and premature rupture of membranes, but the need for abortion was lower in the progesterone group. Progesterone is an effective drug for early-onset bleeding at high-risk pregnancies. However, it might result in premature rupture of membranes.

Patients Don't Want to Talk About Their Symptoms You want to go to the doctor with a complaint and get a diagnosis, but patients don't like to complain. Most patients try to avoid the doctor's office, feeling that they have enough trouble coping with their symptoms. They've learned the hard way that if they don't go to the doctor, they don't get better. And most of them actually DO feel better when they go to the doctor. Hurry and Demand Attention! Remember, more than 80% of medical diagnoses are
