To work with Elements, you need to have an online subscription. Workflow with Photoshop Elements Photoshop Elements comes with a basic tutorial that explains how to work with the program. It's a great way to get started. 1. Open an image 2. Open up the "File" menu, or use ⌘ + I. 3. Click "Open." 4. Select the tool you need to work with and use it. 5. Save the file as a new version, or change it in some way.

Adobe has even included some free brushes you can use to create your own memes. The different tools Photoshop Elements has to work with a photo or image are as follows: Image Processor Keyboards Adjustments Effects Transformations Scripts The Image Processor allows you to manipulate images.

You can filter, edit, crop and resize them. The Alt + Canvas tools let you create new canvas sizes. To change the size of the canvas, hover over it and then press the Shift key. Keyboards let you work with your image more efficiently. The adjustment tools are for color, brightness, contrast, shadows, highlights, etc. The effects let you easily add finishing touches. The transform tools let you rotate, flip and move images around, among other things.

You can apply scripts right away in Photoshop Elements, but you need a free trial to use them. You have to buy Photoshop Elements for more features like filters and text tools. How Photoshop Elements works The adjustments panel is divided into two tabs. The panel on the left is the color panel. Here you can change the colors in your image. If you see the top color palette, it's your current color. The panel on the right is where you can view the swatches used for different colors. You can change the color of the image by selecting the swatch you want. You can filter your image by clicking the eye icon and then using the slider to select a different filter option. The slider on the left of the panel lets you increase or decrease your image's brightness and contrast. You can also use the Zoom tool to zoom in and out. The Transform Tools The Transform Tools let you rotate, flip

Ask HN: How much do hackers get for getting big companies to do their work? - epynonymous I ask because I want to volunteer to help with free up time and get paid to do it. I see many large companies offer unpaid internships to high school kids, can we get paid instead? Or use any sort of freelance consulting firm? ===== mattdeboard Internships and paying for startup advice are two very different things. There are certainly consultants that will take on work for money for startups, but the hourly rate is usually on the low side. And the availability isn't what it should be. ~~~ epynonymous thanks for the response. where would you suggest I start? Saphenous vein bypass conduit: a long-term follow-up. A long-term follow-up after prosthetic "honeycombed" saphenous vein bypass graft was performed on 96 patients with symptomatic aortoiliac occlusive disease. The follow-up period ranged from 5 to 11 years (mean, 6.6 years). The long-term follow-up showed 96 per cent patency in bypasses that had been performed for rest pain, 89 per cent patency in bypasses that had been performed for intermittent claudication, and 100 per cent patency in bypasses that had been performed for tissue loss (including those performed for prosthetic graft occlusion). Eighty-four per cent of patients had unilateral and 16 per cent had bilateral bypasses. Forty-three patients had rest pain, 30 had intermittent claudication, and 23 had tissue loss. The best results were obtained in patients with rest pain. Flow distal to the bypass was sufficient for 84 per cent of patients with rest pain, 80 per cent of patients with intermittent claudication, and 100 per cent of patients with tissue loss. Sixty-four per cent of bypasses did not require reoperation during the follow-up period. The average patency time was 68.2 months for proximal anastomoses and 39.1 months for distal anastomoses. It is concluded that prosthetic honeycombed vein bypass grafts are durable, effective, and should be the conduit of choice for aortoiliac occlusive disease.

Olympic Aquatics Center Tours Workers at the Bath, Schenectady, and Saratoga metropolitan New York area's 2010 Olympic Aquatics Center (retroactively called the "Michael Phelps Swimming Center") are preparing to tear down the 675,000-square-foot facility and rebuild it to a cost of $108 million. The building was designed by McClean, Rieman, and Partners Architects and David Evans, Engineers, and constructed by S.L. Mann and Sons at a cost of $80 million. The facility will accommodate swimming competitions, and by June the pool will have 22 Olympic-size lanes and a surrounding green space known as the Yard.

Q: Python scrapy redirect URI set to http, now it isn't? When I try to run the below spider it is redirecting to The input values: start_url = " start_url = " start_url = " start_url = " It should be running from the server it is assigned to but rather the server is redirecting to the local host. The local host I am running the spider on is connected to my router so it makes sense. Any ideas on how to get this working? It's still running, just no data is scraping. Thanks A: You are getting the local address of the spider, because you are not starting the spider from the command line, but rather using the -c option, this option you are turning on spider = MySpider() scrapy crawl -c- start_url="" but note that to access to the internet you need a proxy in the router. Try something like this: scrapy crawl -c- start_url="" -s SPIDER_MODULE=test.spiders I hope this helps you in the following form
