The new "HyperMotion" engine also gives the player individual player- and ball-specific control. Each player is represented by a highly dynamic avatar that responds to the player's movement. If a player is in a position with strong, short passes and long touches, the avatars of the players he passes to respond accordingly. Real-time actions of the players are reflected in the avatars. If a player uses a feint to lull an opponent or intercept a pass, his avatar will quickly sprint toward the opposing player to prevent him from reacting quickly. A player also has a new animation system that lets him show off his moves and abilities. Aided by enhanced physics, FIFA 22 will also return to delivering more realistic and reproducible game play. For the first time, any player can take his favorite receiver or any defender on a long range pass. When you miss an accuracy that is unrivaled by any other soccer game you can assign the receiver/defender to become a virtual defender, or virtual goalie. Or get creative, and use the new "Cardboard Camera View" feature and guide your players through open space by moving the cardboard box around. In-game physics have also been upgraded with the "New Bosch Physics System," which lets players feel the difference between an official, professional tackle and the weakest touch of a youth player. Among the new features of FIFA 22 are:

- New highly detailed 3D stadiums, complete with additions, modifications, and improvements to the existing stadiums.
- The Champions League has been fully revamped and offers new content. The new Champions League format sets a new benchmark for the competition. The new Champions League format offers three playoff rounds to earn a spot in the final. Any clubs who make it through the three rounds will compete in the UEFA Champions League group stage. For the first time in the Champions League history, the tournament offers clubs a match in a knockout format and in order to advance to the next round of games, a club must defeat an opponent twice. Additionally, a club that has advanced through the group stage will need to win only one game against its opponent in order to make it to the next round.
- In FIFA 21, the FIFA World Cup was won by France. The new FIFA World Cup has seen a number of changes. France has once again retained the tournament and has been joined by a new host nation. Brazil has replaced Ghana as a third nation.
